

A decorative border consisting of alternating pink and white diagonal stripes surrounds the central text.

ROOM 5

STORIES

2019

REVENGE OF THE ROBOTS

BOOM! BANG! SLAM! THE ROBOT WAS ANNIHILATING BUILDINGS AND BLASTING HOUSES IN HIS PATH. THE ROBOT HAD APPEARED AT NOON. AFTER IT LANDED IT CAUSED HAVOC ALL OVER THE CITY.

PEOPLE CRIED. DEAD BODIES HAD BEEN SCATTERED ALL OVER THE ROUGH TERRAIN AND THE STREETS WERE PAINTED RED WITH BLOOD. MILITARY SQUADS COULD BE SEEN JUMPING OUT OF BUILDINGS TRYING TO DESTROY THE MONSTER.

SUDDENLY, A COLOSSAL KILLER WHALE LEAPED OUT OF THE SEWERS AND DEVOURED A MILITARY SQUAD IN ONE BITE.

BEEP BEEP BEEP BOOM! A BUILDING CRUMBLLED, SENDING BITS OF CONCRETE FLYING INTO JEEPS. ONE BIT OF CONCRETE HIT THE FUEL LINE BEFORE THE JEEP DISSOLVED INTO A SEA OF FLAMES.

A METAL GODZILLA SPRANG OUT OF AN AIRCRAFT HANGAR AND BASHED A HOLE INTO A SKYSCRAPER WHICH HIT ANOTHER STRUCTURE WHICH CAUSED ANOTHER CHAIN REACTION. 'RETREAT!' YELLED THE GENERAL AND SPRINTED TO ONE OF THE JEEPS BEFORE DISAPPEARING INTO THE HORIZEN.

TO BE CONTINUED.....

By Senuka

Wave Invasion

On a calm but hot afternoon, Emma decided to go swimming. She chucked on her togs and sprinted outside down the sandy path to the beach. Emma jumped in only to find out the water was freezing. She glanced out to sea, and to her surprise, noticed a surfboard just floating there. Emma swam out to get it and soon enough, she couldn't touch the ground. Soon she was 150 meters out. She passed the pontoon and reached out to grasp it. Emma hopped on and started paddling back.

Suddenly a sudden surge was pushing her out to sea. She paddled as fast as she could, but the powerful surge was too quick for a girl on a surfboard. Soon all the millions of people looked like ants. Suddenly the surge stopped. Emma looked back at the beach, it looked as if somebody had drained all the water out of the beach and left it exposed. Emma glanced behind her, a disturbance in the water caught her eye. A mound of water was rising out of the sea like a wall of water. Suddenly a strong current was sweeping her and her surfboard towards the wall. "HELP!" she screamed. Soon enough she found herself riding up this wall of a wave. Suddenly, her hands failed to grasp the board. "AAAHHH", she screamed before plummeting into the salty sea. "SPASH". She was sinking. Her eyes were stinging with salt water. Her body felt cold and started to shiver. Her breath slowly slipped away. Her lungs were about to burst, she knew all hope was lost.

As her lungs giving in, suddenly she heard a funny sound. "EEEKKK", "EEEKKK". Something darted past. Not meaning to Emma used her last bit of strength and grabbed onto the animals' tail. Suddenly she saw light, maybe she wasn't going to drown after all. At the surface she gasped for air. She saw the friendly face of a dolphin staring at her. But that was all she saw, for she was too tired to stay awake. Slowly but surely, she passed out.

Ten Minutes Later.....

Emma opened her eyes, they felt heavy and sore. She swam back to shore. Her feet touched the sand, but she couldn't see it, in fact she couldn't even see the walkway or the road. She waddled through the silent streets looking at all the damage caused. Of course, it was a tsunami, what else could it have been. As Emma glanced around, she saw cars smashed into houses, a boat blocking the water covered road and luggage floating around the street. Emma then noticed, where are all the people, did they evacuate to higher ground, or did they drown, not knowing what would hit them. But all that mattered to Emma was the fact that she was alive. She had survived.

By Kolbie

No Survivors

As the four friends stood gazing over the Brazilian sea, Buddy barked as the waves smashed against the side of the wharf. The salty smell from the sea filled the air as the light drained from the scarlet sky. As the sky grew darker the girls grew tired and yawned their way back to their hotel.

As soon as they got back to the hotel Buddy ran up the stairs as fast as his little doggy legs could go the girls ran after Buddy, but Avalon ran ahead. The others started walking. When they got to their room with the number 105 on the door Buddy and Avalon were waiting for the others finally, they got there. Sarah-Kate put the key in the lock the door opened Avalon, Buddy, Rylee, Sarah-Kate and Malia all went inside Rylee made some dinner Sarah-Kate was reading horse books Malia was with Avalon at the beach taking Buddy for a walk. When they got back, they all had some dinner and went to bed.

In the morning while they ate breakfast, they were planning their day ahead they finally agreed to go to the wharf to catch a boat and go fishing for the day. They took some food, raincoats and water. They walked down to the wharf Rylee bought some tickets for the boat, she came back holding four tickets she said their boat left in ten minutes. They had to hurry, or their boat would leave without them, they sprinted to the doc and the boat was waiting for them. They clambered on not wanting to miss it, the driver introduced herself she said that her name was Kolbie and she had a dog called Sam

One hour later...

They all had fishing rods in their hands bait on the end and waiting for a fish. A couple minutes later, Avalon was reeling in her rod with help from Rylee and they pulled up an enormous snapper the size of buddy. He barked at the wriggling fish which was trying to get back into the water without dying they took the hook out and put in the cooler.

As the boat arrived in the wharf the sun started to set, and the wharf was deserted the girls got out and took their gear with them. They said goodbye to Kolbie and Sam and decided that they should sit on the of the wharf and have some hot chips and for dinner. Sarah-Kate, Avalon and Buddy all went to the nearest takeaway shop to get the food and came back out with two containers of hot chips. They ate like pigs that night and even ordered more.

In the morning, they all sat at the table in their hotel thinking what they were going do that day and they finally agreed on going down to the wharf with some packed lunch and went off to the wharf. As they got there, they realized that they weren't the only ones wanting to spend the day at the wharf. They made their way to the front of the crowd by crawling through people's legs they stood up and saw a wave coming straight towards them.

By Lexi

The Survivors

It was Christmas morning 2001, my family sat in the lounge Thomas handed Rylee a big box wrapped in sparkling pink paper. Rylee unwrapped it, it was a puppy a German shepherd how cute Rylee called her Aliza. Thomas skyped their grandparents. They said they sent a gift. One week later they got a parcel in the mail it was tickets to brazil "agh" Rylee screamed with excitement. They all hugged and rang their nana and poppa to say thank you.

The plane took off in a week. They all went to their rooms to pack. The next day Rylee went with Aliza to tell her friends the news. They were so excited they had so many questions after she answered their questions she had to go home. One week later she woke early, Rylee was super excited but her house was chaos Kate screamed Thomas stomped her, Lexi, Codey and Eli were in their rooms packing the cabs here Thomas yelled Codey sprinted past her room "shotgun" he yelled that made Kate quite grumpy. They all gathered into the back of the cab they were all squished but who doesn't love a holiday.

When they got to the airport they went through the scanners and stuff they had ten minutes before takeoff Thomas gave Rylee and her siblings ten dollars each "thankyou" she went and brought a chew toy and some treats for Aliza and a book , headphones and a blanket for herself. Once they waited ten minutes they boarded, Rylee and Aliza sat together Rylee watched a movie with Aliza called Romeo and Juliet. Once the movie stopped, she finished her book and fell asleep when she woke up and it was time to get off the plane. The airport was sort of busy, but they were in no rush.

Thomas and Kate brought them lunch she had subway so did Lexi and Codey the others had sushi. After that, Rylee brought a t-shirt. They were in town all afternoon and into the night They even had dinner at an old restaurant Rylee had a Hawaiian pizza. Later that night they dragged their feet to the campsite, they were staying at the grand hotel, but they had to stay at the campsite because their room was taken and would be free tomorrow.

When they woke up the next day Aliza just wanted to chase the birds, but Rylee would not let her, they walked through the street, they saw dancers in the street, and saw graffiti Rylee, thought her favorite was a baby elephant spraying its self with water and its mum was standing behind it. After a lot of walking they did a little bit of shopping then they ate dinner. Rylee skipped through the magical streets of brazil Thomas called for her to slow down. They walked to the grand hotel once they got there everyone chose their beds and because it was late, they all fell asleep.

The next day Rylee was taking Aliza for a walk and she noticed weird ripples in the water, she said it was like the water was shaking, as soon as she saw it she ran to the hotel and told Thomas he slowly explained the world might end. Rylee ran to her room with Kate on her heels. "Oi you're not the only one that's sad" Kate yelled, she looked up "what" Rylee sobbed "yeah"

Kate said as she sat on the end of the bed "your siblings are very upset as well," Kate stood up and left.

Rylee just lay on her bed feeling like a part of her was missing she watched a little spider spin its web on the ceiling, later that day Rylee found herself talking to Aliza "we might have hope" she said sadly to Aliza but she just looked at her and tilted her head to the left a little. After three hours of talking to Aliza Thomas came into Rylee's room "we have hope" he part sang part yelled. "What" she said curiously back he just nodded, turned and told Rylee to get downstairs.

He said that he had called a cab to pick us up early in the morning and take them to a very high peak. That night they all couldn't sleep because they felt scared Rylee slept with Aliza, she was whimpering all night. In the morning they all got up early and ate breakfast very quickly Thomas yelled "the cabs here" they all sprinted down the stair well Rylee sighed she could smell the fear in her family she started to cry "oh Rylee its ok don't cry" Kate said softly.

When they jumped in the cab it was an hour drive but once they got there, they knew they were safe. They set up their tents it was midday and Rylee just lay on her bed with Aliza. That night she woke and wrote in her diary suddenly she heard water and unzipped her tent Rylee screamed her siblings ran out and screamed Aliza barked a sad bark, they watched the wave destroy brazil roof tops. Suddenly they hear Eli yell for help, and they see him out deep Rylee yells "Eli come back" but the currents so strong he can't Thomas yelled for him to come back too but he's way too far out to come back. Suddenly they hear Codey scream they turn our heads and see him way out in the water they watch him disappear under the huge swirling wave.

They then ran to the top of the mountain Thomas held them closely Rylee fell asleep. It's been 5 years and Lexi graduated Thomas has 2 kids, Kate is getting married and the rest of us we are fine, the coastguard found Eli hanging from a cliff a few days later after the incident nothing is known about Codey. We will all never forget the day we almost died.

By Malia

Coming Alive...

On a sunny Saturday morning Gorge was hunched in his office sketching an old merchant sailing ship. He had the window open letting the warm summer breeze in. The outside air was damp, the sea was sparkling an inviting blue color as gorge stretched and look out the window.

As he got up and grabbed his togs the weather turned gray and started pelting down balls of rain, gorge thought that it was weird to rain in summer, but soon forgot and went and had lunch. When the rain had cleared Gorge went out the door to the beach. While he was swimming the partly drawn boat dreams of carrying people that are rich and famous and gold and jewels. After the swim Gorge raced inside as it started to drizzle.

After days of sketching Gorge had finally finished and was very pleased with it. Then Gorge whispered the magic words "come alive old merchant, ship come alive" then the breeze caught the sails and they flapped and slowly the boat moved ford and people hurried across the deck, back and forth and back and forth, delivering orders from the Captain. After a while the ship was sailing round and round the paper.

The next day Gorge was up at six in the morning getting ready to show the world. Once he had brushed his teeth, he got in in to his Lamborghini and drove of then suddenly Gorge remembered, THE PICTURE, he swerved around and headed back up the drive. When he got there, he forgot where he had put it he ran into his study and rummaged in every drawer there was after tipping his study upside down for hours he finally found it but it talked to him as he raced to the car he stopped suddenly froze then ran on wondering why he had stopped.

After two hours in the car he finally reached the Wellington to show the Prime Minister his picture but as he got out a Seagal swooped down and picked up the sketch and flew off with it "no" Gorge cried and ran after the cheeky Seagal then the picture slipped out of the Seagal 's mouth and Gorges arms failed to catch it as it drooped in the water and sailed away into the deep waters.

The end

The Endless Tunnel

He packed his old brown bag with his traveling clothes. "Where is he going?" the people wonder. He yelled out loud "I'm going to find the ENDLESS TUNNEL!" As he walked through the jungle, he was thinking "How will I find the Endless Tunnel?" Then he stepped on an old crumbled up map in the side of the track "what's this" he picks it up "it's a map to the endless tunnel" two days have passed "YES I've finally reached the endless tunnel" the map said you have to keep your hand on the touch pad for 24 hours intel you enter twenty hours passed, just a little more time to go.

His full time passed; the doors slowly creped open. He took his first steps in the tunnel its cold and smells funny. How long will it take me to get through this thing? The map says it will take you 1 year to get though it I will do anything to become famous he mumbles 1 month had passed I can barely survive a month how am I going to survive 11 more 9 more months had passed on the side of the track there was a pump action shotgun and the old looking sine said you will have to carry and use this shotgun or die " I don't want to take any chances" he picked up the shotgun "the shotgun fells like ice"

One month had passed, " I don't see why I need this shotgun the second he said that the most horrifying creches that will give you nightmares are leaking right towards him "oh ship shooting for his life he killed 20 monsters in the 20 seconds finally 12 months passed YES! I did it I'm the happiest man alive I will be FAMOUSE when he got back people were relieved to see him " I haven't seen you for 2 years" " how are you? What did you do? did you reach the end?" "Yes I did. I reached the end of the tunnel."

By Isaac

Bounty of the Earth

The earth as we knew it was gone, aliens had taken over, the inhabitants were forced to leave, but this was in an alternate dimension.

Back on our earth, people were minding their own business, except for jimmy and jerry, they were about to take off, they may never return. Suddenly they leaped out of the rocket when they jumped out, the rocket exploded sending pieces of titanium everywhere, some pieces flew up into the sky and never came back, they had gone up into space, this caused aliens to see the metal and come to earth.

Two weeks later... Aaaaaaaahhhh! Smash! Crrrrracck! buildings had fallen, and people ran away. The army was obliterating the aliens with miniguns. Suddenly, an arm arose from the ground and grabbed the ankle of an army general and then a zombie rose from the ground so did more zombies. The undead was back.

BEAUTY OF MY LIGHT

Lacey and Learia were adopted lovely young ladies. Lacey is four and Learia is a wonderful age of nine. They were wondering why on the second story, was like puffy foamy snow was hovering around them, it was that cold. Lacey's night gown was softly gliding on the scratchy, grey, carpet as her feet were knocking on the hard, splintery, wooden princess steps according to Lacey.

When Learia and Lacey entered the navy-blue carpet "MUM, DAD!" The two sisters were screaming, their mother and father gave them a bouncing- out- of- their- night- gown fright. "Oh, dear my sweet hearts" replied their parents as Learia and Lacey were puffing and huffing with bulging eyes as wide as their fists. WHOOSH!!!! "the fire is dead" squeaked the four-year-old Lacey "what are you coucou crazy? I mean why am I asking you that because you are" answered Learia "but you don't know that I mean it might be dead" cried a babyish voice from Lacey "ha" sighed Learia "my four year old sister is very unique" she mumbled as all the street lights flicked on "it's just after sunset" screeched Lacey "haaaa" when will my street light call for me" Lacey quietly told herself Bat, Splat, whoosh "mmmmmm" as the sisters gulped "Learia I have to tell you now, let's stare out the mirror type window" "why" wondered Learia "no time for questions, now be with me replied Lacey "ha yes I knew it, my beautiful street light is on it is roaring out to me" Lacey proudly exclaimed "come on"

They went to the only powerful light they went to their destiny all they could glare at was the street light that came alive it curled it's burly, long stainless steel stem "hi beauty, it's been two years" the snake street light squiggled it's brawny, long, glistening neck and gave Lacey a squirm "I am so sorry beauty, but it is time to say goodbye forever" Lacey sulked and lifted her head with no sound, hardly any movement and after that, she felt lonely walking back, but she still had her sister Learia, stuck with millions of questions and tons of real crazy thoughts "what was that" Learia asked it's hard to explain but I think it was beauty of my light."

THE BIG WAVE!

Once upon a time, my friends were helping me lead animals down on the beach. Lotti and Savahna ran to the wharf while me and S-K trotted over to them. They were looking at a big wave coming our way. We were about to run for our lives when Lotti fell in the water. A ball came out of nowhere and my dog Rocko went after it.

The ball went into the water and Rocko followed. I was screaming with hope, but he never came. I wasn't going to give up. I jumped into the water I saw Rocko come my way. I grabbed his collar, pulled him up onto the surface and my friends pulled up Lotti. I hugged Rocko's wet fur, I was so happy that he had survived. I grabbed his collar and ran to my friends. We all ran to the hill and everyone was so interested in Lotti, she had interviewers talking all about her but I was so proud of Rocko.

By Samantha

The Big Wave Save

Once upon a time there were five kids who were in England and their names were Sam, Savahna, Lexi, Rylee and Malia and it was freezing cold -5co. They saw lots of people over at the wharf so they went to look. 20 mins later you could see a ginormous wave coming to smash them. The next second they could here screaming. Sam was panicking when suddenly a huge, bright blue wave crashed towards an innocent young kid.

Quickly, someones fluffy border collie leapt and spread its legs over the barrier and plummeted into the big crashing waves of Doom!

Sparky the dog paddled around and grabbed the girl by the hair. Lotti was the name of the girl. After a while Lotti and Sparky scrambled out of the frozen, icy water shivering. Everyone rushed over to see the pair. "I hope she's okay!" Savahna cried. Rylee went to see the freezing cold Border collie who was shivering. So, they went and brought the dog back and dried her. Savahna got some warm food for her. They couldn't see a collar on her so they put up some posters but she was noones so they took her home to New Zealand. 5 weeks later there was newspaper and Sparky's name was in them!

By Sarah-Kate

A Journey Home

I'm Duke. I live on a farm in England with Jack, he looks after me. I would not have such a happy life without him. You're probably wondering what happened, I will tell you but first I need to get donkey. If you are thinking who donkey is, you're just going to have to wait for the story about my life. My life wasn't very good until Jack found me. Oh, and it looks like donkey is coming to us, so let's get started.

I was lost I just knew it. I wondered how Anna and James felt when they realised I was missing. As I stumbled through the overgrown forest, I remembered the warmth and joy in their eyes. How they held me close and cared for me. Anna's sweet smell of chocolate as I buried closer into her chest and when James came home from work, he always tickled me between my ears. Growing more hungry and tired I settled down under an oak tree. As sleep overwhelmed me, I drifted into blackness.

As I woke up, my eyes still blurred with sleep, I yelped in fright as a figure loomed over me. I scrambled backwards and bumped into the tree behind me. My eyes started to focus, and I saw a donkey leaning over me. I growled at it, but it simply stared at me. Then a strange noise came out of the donkey's mouth and spit flew all over my face. I turned and fled and then winced in pain as I realised it had stood on my tail. I snapped at its leg, but I couldn't reach. It relisted my tail and I turned and ran, but the Donkey followed me. It looked like I was stuck with this Donkey.

I had been travelling with donkey for two weeks now and great friend ship had formed between us, and now night fall was upon us. We gazed up at the stars shimmered above us. It was very peaceful, and it gave me time to think about James and Anna again. Sadness filled me and it seemed donkey somehow knew it and snuggled closer to me and made a soft soothing noise which comforted me. I watched as donkey fell asleep and the way he twitched his ears and moved his legs in a rhythmical pattern as though he was running across a lush meadow. I laded my head against his body and settled into a deep sleep.

Waking up at dawn we set of, me and donkey did not know which way were heading. Determination of finding Anna and James filled my heart. My belly growled which reminded me how hungry I was. Running ahead I saw a lot of human houses. Hope surged through me not only for finding food but James and Anna, but then I heard a panicked noise coming from donkey, so I raced back. Only to see donkey being surrounded by a group of cats hissing and spitting at donkey, taking turns to strike. I barked to draw the cat's attention and donkey struck one in the back of the head dealing a killing blow.

The cats turned to Donkey hissing and spitting and soon I couldn't see him but a swarm of cat pelts. I launch myself on top of the pile of cats, my claws out sheaved. I felt with pleasure cat flesh beneath them. Blind in terror for Donkey I started ripping at anything I could touch. I howled in pain as I felt claws slice deep into my back. I spun around and the cat was flung off my back. Glancing around I saw that the cats were retreating. Panting I walk slowly towards donkey. I dragged my feet because it felt as though stones were weighing my them down. I howl at the cats as they streak through the trees and collapse in a tired and injured heap beside Donkey.

Sniffing around in the rubbish bins I pull out a quarter of steak hardly enough for me, looking up I see a sign which read "WELCOME TO ASTON." I thought that must be the city name. Quickly I gobble it down. Looking around at my surroundings, I see soft white snow fall from the rain darkened sky, musty smelling old villas and worn out cobble roads, I hear people sniffing, wheezing and the quiet shuffling of feet. I smell the sweet aroma of sausage sizzles wait, sausage sizzle, I race down the path making Donkey squeal in fright and children shout 'doggy doggy mummy.' Almost there I skidded at a halt at the sound of a gruff voice behind him, 'of to the animal control you two.' A tight metal wire was thrown over my neck suffocating me. Pulling away only made it tighter. Me and Donkey were placed in a truck. As the engine started everything went black.

Waken up by the barking of dogs I glance around for Donkey finding him in the cage next to me. Whining I scratch the chicken wire the kept me inside the wretched pen. Giving up I slump down trying to block out the howling of animals. Suddenly everything went silent. I pressed myself against the wire and saw a man in ragged clothing, but he had a warm smile, curly ginger hair upon his head and round brown eyes. Passing cage by cage, finally he set his eyes on me. Making a gentle clucking noise he slowly moved his hand inside my cage. I growled at his hand and he quickly pulled it away. I heard the door swing open and I saw a man in a white coat say, "I wouldn't trust that one, he only just came in today. No training or anything." "Well I think he lovely" replied the man with ragged clothes. "Perfect for herding sheep." The door swung open once more as the both men walked out.

The man with curly hair upon his head came back with a kind small lady. The lady had a lead and collar in her hand before I knew what was happening the lady had slipped the lead and collar around my head. Taken out of my cage I tried to bolt but they held the lead tight. Donkey started making strange longing noises. The pair started talking in hushed voices between each other. Then Donkey cage door was open, and he rushed to me. Quickly they slipped a second lead and collar over Donkeys head.

They lead us into a room, I can see a door to outside and freedom. The cogs in my brain started turning as I tried to think of a way to free me and Donkey without this human. He led us outside and around a corner to a place that smelt delicious. He tied us up outside and went inside. We struggled against the leads but couldn't break free. We sat and waited, and I barked at anyone who walked past. Finally, he came out carrying an ice cream, a piece of lamb and a couple carrots. Giving the carrots to donkey and the piece of lamb to me, he started licking at his ice cream. Donkey ate his carrots quickly, while I sniffed cautiously at the lamb, he had given me. I licked it. It sure tasted amazing. I took a small bite and then ate the rest of it.

He led us to a medium sized old shack in the middle of nowhere, with pasture and gardens. He opened the rickety shack and we saw ... to be continued

-By Izzy T

MAYHEM

It was a sunny but windy Friday at the Viewing Point Wharf. Brad and his Uncle Bob had sprinted to the Viewing Point Wharf to watch the annual surfing tournament. They couldn't wait until it started. Brad and Uncle bob shouted its started. Every time the wave hit the wharf it shacked but each time the waves bigger and bigger the shocks got worse and worse. The walls started getting crakes in it until the wall was no match. People started sprinting of the wharf to safety until half of the wharf was gone.

However, uncle Bob tripped over as he was sprinted like there was no more. He couldn't get up in time one second later he was hanging for his life then AAAHHHHH! He fell. Brad shouted Noooooo! He didn't know what to do next!

Unfortunately, Brad wasn't fast enough. He watched him getting smashed into the wharf one hundred times until he was no more! The life guard picked Brad up as the where evacuating. they took brad home to his house to share the news about uncle Bob dyeing.

- By Arlo

The Delivery

"Are you sure you want to do this Sarah?" Asked Matt "I can turn this helicopter around, and we can get a doctor to do it." "No Matt I must get this medicine to the village there are some bad diseases in the world, and we don't want them spreading to this village, plus I've been dreaming of this since I was 9... wait that was 10 years ago!" "wait so Sarah are you saying you're only nineteen?!?"

"Matt is that it over there" Sarah cried excitedly pointing off into the distance "It sure is Sarah" Sarah stared out the window amazed by what she was seeing her big green eyes gleaming with joy, the helicopter was filled with silence, until Matt broke it. "there are tracks from the previous doctors and I have also packed a bag of things for you" he said handing Sarah a big bag. She opened it up to see food, water, a map, the medicines, a knife, and a compass.

The helicopter lowered and Sarah's nerves kicked in. Matt pushed a button opening the door of the helicopter giving Sarah a rope to get down onto land. "See you soon Matt" down she slid with her bag on her shoulder. She took a few paces forward, she stopped and waved Matt off as he flew the helicopter off. She turned around and breathed in the fresh air of Madagascar.

After lots of snapping branches barging through bushes and stomping through puddles for half an hour to her surprise she had got somewhere! Sarah's bright green eyes shined with excitement Sarah found a zipline that by the looks of it was about 400 meters. The zipline went over a huge river, bush and rocks. Without a thought Sarah clambered on and her thick black hair trailed behind her as she flew down the zipline, holding the bag with left hand and holding onto the stick that kept the system going. Her right hand was stretched out as far as possible as she cried out with joy. As the end was clearer, she reached for something to make her stop, but there was nothing "WHERE'S THE BRAKES!!!!!!!" Sarah shouted as she went flying off the zipline landing with a solid "thud". "OUCH!" she whimpered lying flat on her back staring at the sky, but not for long because 2 seconds later she just stood up and walked off as if nothing had happened.

"Hello?" ... "Hello?" ... "Err miss?" "you with the black hair!" Sarah turned around with surprise. "You're Doctor Sam aren't you! "yes, I am "she said with fright "and who might you be?" "I'm Sarah, I'm going to deliver the medicines" "Matt will come pick you up now" "oh I remember Matt he is the helicopter driver isn't he." "climb aboard miss Samantha" Matt smiled "Matt my old friend!" she exclaimed running over to say hi to Matt. Sam and Matt had been best friends since they were 2 and they could barely go just a week without seeing each other so it must've been hard going 3 years without seeing each other. "Good luck Sarah" Matt smiled as he flew off and away, they went.

Sarah continued down all the paths until, finally she found a huge lake with a canoe tied to a small post standing in the swamp. She sailed and sailed across this lake until she found two people that were obviously waiting for her." Matt I'm here now" they looked like mother and daughter with their dark skin that went with their long dark brown hair. "Hello, I'm Holly and this is my daughter Lotti, you must be Sarah because I can see that you have a medicines bag there" Sarah glanced down at the bag covered in mud and it had weeds sticking out of it too. "sorry it's so dirty, the medicines are fine though." Sarah gave Holly the bag, Holly's hands were trembling "thank you, you came just in time. Everyone is getting sick." Sarah looked at the house made from sticks, through the gaps she could see a little girl who looked around three lying there sick. "I have to go now, sorry, Matt is here to pick me up." Sarah said feeling guilty as she dragged herself to the helicopter that had just landed.

By Savahna

The Death

"Boom" the waves splashed against the wharf. "Wow look at that one" said Alice to Anna. Alice, Anna, Amber and Ashley are all sisters on a holiday in Brazil, and Ashley had brought them all tickets to go on a massive fishing boat for three days. As they waited on the wharf Alice started to get hungry. "Ashley can I go over to the market and get some food". "No". "Please". "Fine but you have to get us all something OKAY". "Okay I will get us some hot chips, be back in five minutes." "Ashley I'm going to go get some food said Anna. "Do you want some". "Alice is already gone to get us some hot chips and here she comes" said Ashley.

As the four sisters sat on the wharf and ate their chips Amber spotted a massive wave. The wave was big and it was coming straight for the wharf. "Guys that wave is going to hit the wharf, look at it. GUYS". "Stop being silly Amber" said Anna. "Those waves aren't going to hit the wharf so stop worrying." A few minutes later an old lady screamed "EVERYBODY RUN". "Told you" said Amber. "There is no time to be right, just hurry up and help find a way to get off the wharf as soon as possible or we will be dead." As they scrambled around the wharf trying to find a way off Anna found an underground tunnel. Anna didn't know whether to tell her sisters or just hide down there by herself. In the ten seconds before the wave hit, she decided to tell the them. "Guys lets hide down here." She knew she had made the right decision.

They all rushed down to the bottom of the tunnel just in time. "Anna do you have a torch in your bag" asked Alice. "Umm yes I do." "Ewe it's so gross down here, look at the mold." said Ashley. "Ahh" screamed Anna. "What is it" asked Alice. "It's ...a... umm...It's a dead body and a journal". "Read it read it" said Alice. Anna hesitated before she picked up the journal. "Okay it says that her name is Lexi and she was shot in a mosque shooting right here. She was going to a shop when a guy shot her and about eight other people". "Yeah. Look at all the bullet holes in her stomach and the blood" said Ashley. They all stared at the blood on the ground and the tiny bullet holes in the bodies stomach. "The guy must have dumped her down here along with this journal". "Anyway, we need to find some food" said Alice. "BOOM" the wave hit the old wharf.

All you could hear was the deafening screams and cries of people running for their lives. "Guys this tunnel is filling up with water" screamed Anna. "BOOM" another wave hit, and the tunnel rapidly started filling with water and Anna Amber Ashley and Alice slowly drowned to death.

Bucky the Saviour

Zach swiftly stabbed the giant tarantula in the back. Green blood exploded out, covering all of his surroundings goeey green. Zach had to run. Time was running out. He jolted to a miniature cave shaped into a cliff then he dove into the cave and disappeared into the darkness. All he could do was wait in deep dark silence. BANG! BOOM! CRUNCH! The cliff was falling apart. Zach ran as fast as he could straight out of the cave, watching it crumbling down and wondering what caused it.

Suddenly, he heard a familiar hissing sound, as soon as he turned around he was doomed. A whole mob of giant spiders was ready to kill, but for some reason they hesitantly started backing away. He only just realized the black, shadow of something massive was covering him. He turned back around to see the most hostile looking giant he'd ever seen. Zach was horrified. He pulled out an arrow and bow and hopefully shot at the giant's arm but the giant flicked it away as if it were only a mosquito bite. The giant grabbed a rock from the decimated cliff and dropped it on Zach's leg. He howled in pain as the giant laughed rudely at him.

Before long, they went silent. Clip, clop, clip, clop. They heard the sound again. Out of the bushes came a grubby, white horse cantering for the rock on Zach's leg. Boom! The horse's head hit the rock and caused it to roll off his leg. The horse mightfully scooped up Zach and took off into the woods. They found some berries and an antidote for Zach's leg. After that, they found shelter in a cave and Zach lit a fire. They eventually went to bed looking at the glistening stars. Zach said that night "you need a name... how about Bucky?". He lay to rest. "Good night, Bucky." That's just how our story begins.

By Zach

The Visitor

“Click...Click...Snap” the sound of hundreds of cameras filled the air. Craning their necks to the skies to see the enormous specimen, the growing crowd all let out a gasp when the robot took its first steps. It pulled out a rocket launcher on the left hand and a Kuda on the right. It starts firing at people, 2000 people died in 30 minutes. People hid in their house's and all tried to escape but all failed.

That night 100 towers knocked, down 1000 homes demolished only 2 people escaped and 200 people survived. (2 years later) The markets had no food, the people had no food. Now only 10 people are living. Everyone is crammed into one small crumbled house. People are waking up to the sound of helicopters guns and a big THUD.

Crowds sprinted over to the window there was no robot. Everyone happily ran outside, the robot fell, the military from 6 different countries surrounded the fallen robot. 25 years past the city was rebuilt the 10 people that survived got the world record for surviving a robot invasion and now there are all billionaires.

By Isaac

Mirror in the Attic

She had found it lying alone, deserted, abandoned in the attic. Alexis had been looking through her now dead mother's belongings and saw a little spark of light from in the corner. Alexis gazed at it for quite some time. Where had she got it from? Why had no dust settled upon it, as it had done over everything else that was abandoned in her attic? A layer of thick dust blanketed the floor, and as the sun glared through the window softly she saw the reflection of her mother. The mirror looked flawless and untouched by age, the mirror had no finger prints either. "Alexis! Dinner is ready!" "coming Dad!" She said startled.

The next morning after breakfast Alexis started heading up to the attic but then her dad stopped her. "what do you find so exciting about that attic?" he said suspiciously "well I was looking at it yesterday and then instead of my reflection, I saw mums." her father rolled her eyes and continued to read the paper. "Alexis, isn't this your friend Julia here?" Alexis' dad lay the newspaper flat out on the table. Alexis looked down at the paper to see a photo of Julia smiling back at her. The picture was titled "MISSING Julia Roberts, last seen yesterday on April 4th, 2018 if found call 027 832 1811." "I hope she is found" Alexis said teary eyed, "I'm going to go up to the attic now Dad."

Alexis ran over to the corner, the ground creaking beneath her shoes. Alexis sat down and propped the mirror up against one of the thick, timber beams that jutted out from the attic floor. Settling down into a more comfortable position, she tentatively placed a finger on the glass. The mirror acted as if she had touched water and rings started to form around her finger. Water started spilling out onto the floor as a gateway formed. The mirror was now a doorway. "what is happening..." she whispered "dad!" Alexis said panicked "what is it Alexis?!" he could sense the fear coming from Alexis. "i touched the mirror, it-" "i know what the mirror does Alexis, I know. Now go and do something in your room before dinner please."

At dinner time Alexis was called down for dinner to talk with her Dad. "Alexis you may be thinking what I'm thinking. You may not, but I think Julia is in the world on the other side of the mirror." Alexis looked at her Dad in horror "but how? Wait no that doesn't matter yet. I want to go and help her." "Alexis, I know your determined but, I don't know if I can do it. I don't want to lose you like I lost your mother." Josh looked into his daughters' eyes and sighed "Alexis you must listen to me. When you are in that world only talk to people you know, if someone is following you run, run like you never have before, run and don't turn your back. You hear me?!" he said sternly "yes Dad I understand" she could see the fear in his eyes "go change into something else back a small bag and you can go."

Alexis entered the attic wearing a black hoodie and grey leggings she had her small blue bag on her shoulder. She went and settled down in the corner. Taking a deep breath, she touched the glass softly and watched as the water spilled out onto the floor. That's when she realised that when the water touched the floor, the floor was still dry. Ignoring that Alexis went through the mirror and looked around...

The sky was grey, and it looked like just a normal busy city. When someone brushed her shoulder, she was about to say something but then remembered her Dads words, "don't talk to people you don't know." Alexis looked around for people she did know. She needed somewhere to stay. She found a big park and decided to go for a walk around it. Standing a few metres away were 5 men in black hooded capes, Alexis just ignored them like her farther said. She looked over her shoulder and out of the corner of her eye she saw the men following. She started to go into a jog, the men sped up too. "run, run like you never have before!" a voiced called in her head. "RUN!" Alexis ran faster then she knew she even could. At the same time, she had to hold down her hood so no one would see her face. She felt something softly prick her arm, she ran on. Her head started to feel light. After that was just darkness.

Alexis opened her eyes and saw she was lying on cold concrete, she was in a room because through all the blurs she saw a concrete roof too. She sat up to see metal bars around her. She clutched onto her bag that was sitting beside her. She could hear sobbing, but her vision was too blurry to see where it had come from. Once her vision cleared up, she could see that a girl who looked about 14 too was sitting there balling her eyes out. "Julia?" Alexis questioned "Alexis?!" they both hugged each other through the bars but Alexis broke off. "Julia it's a key!" Alexis whispered happily "we can use this random stick down under this bench to grab it" Julia said pushing a stick through the bars to Alexis. After so many tries Alexis managed to hook onto the key and pull it through the bars. The girls unlocked themselves and quickly snuck out the fire exit. They stopped outside and sat down for a lunch break, but while looking for food Alexis found a small hand mirror. "That's the mirror I used to get her!" Julia said shocked "we can use this to get back then!" Alexis replied "but we have to go quick Alexis, I hear the guards coming" the girls simply touched the hand mirror and the mirror expanded and was ready for them to go through. They got back to Alexis' house and Julia got home in no time. They were fine for now.

By Savahna

The Sacrifices

Hours before disaster, little did I know, that a harmless book would change everything. I was in the library looking for a book about mythology. I decided to study this subject as I was told I am an exceptionally good fiction writer, so I wanted to write a book.

As my fingertips scan the edge of the shelves, I stumble across a thick dusty book. I pull the hefty book out of the tightly stuffed shelf and nestle down on a bean bag to read the hard-leather-bound book. My eyes glance over the lavish hand painted pictures and land on the first word.

I wake up in a large field with nothing but two doors. I peak through each door cautiously, making sure nothing jumps out at me. One of the doors is good and one is bad, I look down at the dewy grass and see a note. I tear open the dampened envelope and carefully study the delicate page that reads:

To my dear James,

I was reading a story to Amy and Jason before they went down for their midday nap when we got teleported to a vile world with a putrid smell of rotten eggs with no food or water. Please come save us

Love Layla

“Oh no what do I do, the sign on the evil door says there is a 99.999% chance of death”. I think to myself “how would I survive the deathly hollows of doom and save Amy, Jason and Layla. The clock is ticking, I don’t know how long ago that letter was sent.” Fear shoots down my spine like lightning. The door handle turns easily, and I slip inside the prehistoric doorway. The door slams behind me, causing the handle to drop and make a small dent in the bright red grass. My eyes glance up into a world of terror.

Due to the blood-dyed grass, my white shoes are now tie-dyed with red. A huge bird with the face of a blob fish swoops down and takes a large chunk out of my favourite shirt. I already regret being here, and I only walked in less a than five minutes ago.

I walk tall for a few steps, making sure nothing sees my fear, before falling into a deep hole. I land on a nice relaxing cushion. I slowly waddle off the large pillow, when it starts moving “what the -” before I could say heck, the pillow bucks me off onto the hard cauliflower trees. An old, torn rope appears in front my face. My instincts tell me to reach forward and tug on the rope to safely lower myself down to the ground. Something suddenly occurs to me, I’m using up all my energy fast, if I don’t find something to eat, I would be dead in no time. I pull myself up and swing on the rope to get on to the ground. I stumble forward into a tree.

My head hurting, I look up and to my surprise I see a coconut nestled in the trees. I climb up the tall spindly tree and pluck the plant off the lush green leaves that it is resting in and drop in on the ground. I climb down and bash the fruit against the hard coconut palm until it is soft enough to rip open. Inside was no coconut flesh, but instead a note. It read:

‘If you want me to free your wife and kids find the thing that will make you evil more than the rest’

“WHAT that doesn’t even make sense evil more than the rest” plonking down onto the blood dampened grass I begin to think. The thing that will make you evil more than the rest A wizard...a monster...a demon. “Ughhh” I moan, hang on what’s evil backwards. I reach into my bag and pull out a pen and an old scrunched up shopping receipt and scribble down the word evil and flip it “LIVE IS EVIL BACKWARDS” I yell excitedly.

Find the thing that makes you LIVE more than the rest but who are the rest the monsters duh there are no humans in this world except for me, Layla, Amy and Jason. I look forward at the barky trunk and see a round red shiny strawberry. Plucking the strawberry of the tree I sink my shiny white teeth into the soothing strawberry.

My mind begins to relax as I drift off into the sky and teleport back to the library. I walk home and to my surprise I see Layla reading Amy and Jason a book. I ask Layla if anything weird had happened and she said, "well there was one thing".

THE HUMONGOUS WAVE

The year is 2020 and the three best friends Savannah, Sam and Sarah-Kate are in America on an old rickety wharf waiting for a tour boat arrive so they could see the wild life that live in the sea, in the summer school holidays (NZ summer school holidays so it is winter in America) and now for the story...

"Wow America is such a beautiful country" Sarah-Kate said in amazement while on her phone trying to find WIFI, "yes it surely is" replied Savannah happily. "What are you looking at Sam?" asked Savannah "WAVE" shouted Sam "What I finally found WIFI so I'm just listening to six sixty" Sarah-Kate answered loudly. "WAVE" Sam yelled again then Sarah-Kate looks out to sea "WAVE" she yells, "I wonder if it will hit us?" Sam questioned in amazement "the odds of it hitting us is very high so we should run to the top of that lushes lime green hill over there" Savannah announced to Sam and Sarah-Kate, as the three best friends walked up the hill they could hear the screams of the people below them still on the old rickety wharf still waiting to go on the tour boat.

"What are we doing up here the humongous wave wasn't even going to hit us" Sarah-Kate snarled angrily to Savannah "well what if we were down there and that wave hit us and crushed us to our death" Savannah remarked. The three girls walked down the hill and then... "Why are we going the hill what if another humongous wave comes" Sam trembled in fear "the odds of another humongous wave coming is very low" Savannah remarked. "What are you looking at Sam?" Sarah-Kate asked "WAVE" Sam bellowed as the humongous wave came crashing towards them, "it's going to hit us" Sarah-Kate screamed at the top of her lungs "no it won't remember the other the other wave it didn't hit us so chances are very slim that it will hit us" Savannah announced so they kept going down the hill until they hit the wharf.

"Where are we" grilled Sam "Where in heaven?! I knew we should have run to the top of the hill, but no Savannah said that it won't hit us, but she was wrong" Sarah-Kate hissed.

"Where am I Sam, Sarah-Kate where are you guys" Savannah said like a prey being hunted from a predator in the wild, then suddenly a humongous devil named Lexi came out of the blue "you're in hell" she hissed "noo..." Savannah cried.

- By Lotti

THE WAVE BARREL DISASTER

Tahlia was so charged up that her battery wasn't going to go flat. Tahlia thought that she was going to have a mind fart because today was the day it was finally boat racing. She instantly alighted to the numbing, arctic, fluid wharf and all she could taste was a lovely sudden lime flavour to the fresh bitter air. The cold steam was simply rising high to reach her smooth, soft, tanned face. Her dad hauled her to the front of the wharf and squealed "look we get to see one of the most famous waves in Dolly city" and then she just totally froze with a oh my goodness face. Tahlia was definitely stuck like this because the barrel in the wave had just not finished yet she called four people over. The two siblings Bethanee and Bob plus the two best friends Lucy and Kolbie.

They literally sprinted and leaped over as they were losing fresh breath and their incy toes numbing on the arctic, fluid wharf as their pink, smooth, sunburnt feet were hardly touching the wharf. Tahlia screeched out in fear "a a a racing boat is coming it is cherry red and has pitch black raven coloured writing on it." She glitched up her eyes and it flew straight through the barrel and oh my goodness we got a huge fright we pounced to the back of the mass of tourists like a cat that just saw cucumber. Tahlia shook her dad if he was a stuffed rag doll but he did not answer instead he yelled at the top of his lungs and leaped into the lime flavoured fresh air and screeched "yippee yippee." Tahlia slightly but carefully lent over her right shoulder as she whispered to Lucy's best friend kolbie "it seems like he's got ants in his pants" she replied "what's wrong with your father" "I have no wait, I have an idea maybe because a storm is coming that's one tanned finger up and two the cherry red coloured race boat with pitch black raven coloured writing on it just went through a wave barrel "oh yah" Kolbie replied. Then Tahlia screams "meteor" and realized "oh oh the ferry, tourists are waiting for the ferry" she ran into the little red station it has a telephone and a tv then guess what happened the tv glitched on, and then "breaking news we just spotted a meteor coming towards our waters it is coming about 100 kilometers per hour as we have a little film for you to watch, thanks for watching if you are glaring at the tv today." As I was listening the ferry peaked out of nowhere the flaming, hot meteor was going straight towards the beautiful glittery, glistening ferry and then bang!!!! "oh my flippers!!" Tahlia screeched at the top of her lungs. The beautiful ferry had bubbled to the seafloor "oh dear" she said well she was losing fresh lime breath after that fright. Tahlia just wouldn't talk for three whole days because she was frightfully horrified.

THE END

- By Tahlia

GRAVITY CONFUSION

One magnificent tea party morning, Crissey, Stacey and Emma were either holding their breath with cherry tomato colours bleached on their faces, or holding a mouse sound laugh cheekily because they were trying to rip and rip and rip the leg of the barbie doll and possibly the way they are going, they might pull the other one off as well. The girls cocked their heads to one side just ever so slightly something was glistening deep into Emma's eyes, it was strong, silver and hard ruby red. It clinked onto the ground and slurped all the gravity out of Earth as it was shaking the plates in the firm, fresh, soil. The plates were pitching together and made an earthquake. Crissey, Stacey and Emma's brain nerves made one big shock in their brains as they realized that they were vibrating "earthquake"? Emma and Stacey thought "magnet" Crissey dared "what" everyone replied "under the bed"!!!! Emma exclaimed "no this is weird" Crissey was explaining. "I feel odd and floaty" Crissey continued as she drew her head towards the coloured in floor with pretty hot pink flowers, and pink fluffy unicorns, dancing on rainbows as well, on the rough floor. Her toes were leaving ever so slowly and she started gliding as her eyes were gaining to stare out the shimmering window, there lifting high to the marshmallow clouds was a colossal magnet that even had a signature on it, well it didn't so much have a signature because it was from some sort of company from the Milky Way that was called odd griffon. "what is it" Emma and Stacey cried well Crissey suddenly sulking with light fluffy tears as they extended down her beautiful, tanned, face "AHHHHHH"!!!! Emma and her thoughtful sisters screamed as their mum floated in and pushed the wooden door shut and screeched "we have to live in space!" it echoed in the room like a cave in the deep dark forest.

Tahlia

THE CHAMPIONS WORLD

Lucy leaped on to the zipline and grasped the wet slippery rope. The rain poured down. It felt like the sky was crying. The zipline whizzed along over the forests of Brazil. Up ahead a shiny blue light appeared and grew larger and larger as Lucy whizzed closer. She was going so fast that the forest beneath her turned to a blur of amber and emerald. Then Lucy hit the blue light, and everything faded from sight.

Lucy must have been knocked out because she woke up to the sun shining and birds chirping. She rubbed her eyes and sat up. There in front of her was something like a tree. Sure, it had leaves, a trunk and branches but it was lavender colored! Lucy decided to call it a tree anyway. Lucy turned around and saw trees like the first one. Some were a fiery red, some a butter yellow. Some were green like avocados, some the color of brass. Even some the colors of blueberries. The golden sand was burning under Lucy's feet.

Lucy was getting hungry now so she walked towards the colorful forest see if she could find anything to eat. Lucy realized if she looked carefully the forest was alive with animals. There were birds, beetles, bees, even leopards. Lucy tripped and stumbled over roots on the shadowy winding path that led though the forest. Bugs buzzed and the wind rustled though the trees.

Up ahead the trees turned black and old. The air got colder and colder as Lucy walked on. It was silent and dark now. There were no animals in sight. A twig snapped ahead of Lucy. Lucy stopped and looked around. She could not see anything. "Hello" Lucy called. No answer. Then a growl came from behind the tree that was quite close to Lucy. She turned and ran and did not stop running until she was back on the beach.

Lucy lay down panting, trying to get her breath back. She calmed herself down by telling herself it was probably a fox or a lone wolf. Lucy looked around wondering which way to go and saw some tracks to her left. She stood up and walked over. They were animal tracks Lucy thought. Then she realised what type of animal they belonged to. They were horse tracks. She looked around and saw a horse as black as a raven's wing, grazing under a yellow tree.

As Lucy admired the beautiful horse it turned to look at her and spoke to Lucy. "Hello" the horse neighed to Lucy. "My name is raven. What is your name?" Lucy jumped back in fright. "You talk?" stammered Lucy. "Of course!" Raven neighed. "Every animal does. Sorry for scaring you." "It is okay. My name is Lucy." Lucy replied.

A squawk came for above Lucy and Raven. "What was that." Lucy asked Raven. "That's Talon. He is a hawk. said Raven. A gigantic hawk landed on a branch of the yellow tree Raven had been grazing beneath minutes before. Its sharp claws dug into the rough bark so it could balance. Talon pointed his mighty, feathery wing at Lucy and asked Raven in gruff voice. "Who is she?" "Her name is Lucy." Raven replied. Lucy admired Talon sharp claws, cruel yellow eyes and his pointy yellow beak that was tipped with black.

- By Sophie

"Who is hungry" Talon asked Raven and Lucy. "Me" shouted Raven and Lucy at the same time. "Okay. Let's go to Ice Town." said Talon. "What's Ice Town? Lucy asked Raven. "A town completely made of ice that hides talking animals from humans." replied Raven. "I forget to ask early. What is this place called?" Lucy asked Talon. "Well, it is a mythical world called The Champions World." answered Talon. "Wait, I am in a mythical world!" gasped Lucy. "Well, yeah. Did you think you were in New Zealand?" said Raven.

"Let's go" said Talon. Lucy followed Raven and Talon into the forest from a second time that day. They walked for about five to ten minutes before coming to a clearing lined with bushes. The bushes had hundreds and hundreds of flowers on them. Every color Lucy could think of. Talon flew towards the bushes and began looking for something muttering the whole time "where is it?" At last he found looking for. A crystal the color of blood. Talon held the crystal for Lucy to see. "The Bloodstone crystal. The key to Ice Town." said Raven. Talon passed the Bloodstone to Raven. Raven began chanting in a language Lucy had never heard before and drew a circle in the soft grassy ground.

Instantly a glowing ruby crystal staircase appeared in the ground leading deep down into the earth. "Talon you go first, Lucy you go in the middle and I will go at the back." instructed Raven. As they walked down the glowing crystal stairs their footsteps echoed of the walls. The ruby stairs turned into a little dirty tunnel. It felt like the tunnel was endless. After about five minutes of walking in pitch blackness Lucy saw a dim light. "The end of the tunnel" Lucy said gleefully. Her legs were shaking from tiredness. It had been a long day with lots of new sights and sounds. Lucy forced her legs to keep moving. They emerged into the light. They were in Ice Town. Lucy knew why it was called Ice Town. Everything was covered in ice and snow and it was freezing. Lucy brought a coat to keep warm. Raven and Talon gave Lucy a tour. Soon Lucy settled in. Raven, Talon and Lucy lived happily ever after.

BIG WAVE

One day, there was a large man who ran across the wharf and jumped into the water.

As he ran he tripped over and landed in the water on his stomach.

He screamed because it stung like a bee!

By Reuben

The Castle

There was a village where people were disagreeing with the castle location. The castle was located in the middle of the town. People tried to bomb that castle.

The people who were living in the castle were stealing food from the people who lived outside the castle, in the village.

The village people were angry and they didn't really know how to fix the problem so they were fighting.

The castle dwellers sent out four hermit crabs to attack the villagers. The hermit crabs never returned. They all died. After the Hermits Crabs died the castle dwellers stopped stealing food from the villagers. Hermit Crabs were their only food.

Story by Reuben Symons

POSION

"Ally! Ally dear! Wake up, you are going to miss the bus!" The sun seeps through the cracks in the curtain. "UGHH!" grunts the 18-year-old daughter of Maria Carse. Ally is ALWAYS late in the morning. Rolling out of bed she thinks of the secret that she's part of. Ally wishes that she could tell mum or Derick her boyfriend, but the number one rule is you are NOT allowed to tell anyone. ANYONE!

DING DONG! Echoes the doorbell. "HELLOOOOO!" Derick cries out. "Coming!" Ally pulls on her school uniform, grabs an apple, some money for school lunch and her bag. She flies down the creaky worn down stairs to the front door. As she yanks the metal doorknob Derick swoops her up in his strong arms. A smile creeps across Ally's face as the morning sun beams down on them.

Just after their first class they meet up together. "Hey!" calls out Derick from a few lockers away. "Hi!" Ally chirps as the echo from the cold corridor surrounds her with the clip-clop sound from her shoes. Ally walks over to him in her shiny high heels. Leaning her delicate cheek forward, Derick lightly plants a kiss on her rosy skin. Ally strolls down the cold corridor with her first boyfriend. Hand in hand they walk to their second class.

BOOM! SNAP! BANG! Gunshots. Ally sits straight up. Visions flash through her mind. Pictures of mum. Pictures of Derick. Pictures of war and blood and and the last vision she couldn't make out. Someone is calling out her name in the distance. Mum. Mum. MUM! Pain shoots through her like a lightning bolt. It feels like her heart has been ripped apart. The smell of fear fills her lungs. Ally is shaking all over. Someone else is calling her name now. "ALLY! ALLY! ALLY!" Derick's voice pulls her from the visions. Her heart thumping like mad, Ally springs from the ancient desk in the middle of the lesson. "Excuse me Miss!" Ally chokes through a flood of tears. "I have to go" Ally bursts out of the cramped room. She stumbles along the path soaking her top with tears. Away from school. Away from the aghast students. Away from Derick. Toward danger. Toward Mum. Bolting down the cobble stone path nearly tripping over her feet, the sight of her home quickens her pace.

"NOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOO!!!!!!" Ally screams at the top of her lungs through salty tears in pain. The whole neighborhood hears her desperate cry. Derick finds her in a crumpled ball on the plush carpet under the table. A wet patch by her sky-blue eyes spreads like wild fire. Ally's water logged lashes glimmer in the sun. Beside her a wooden chair. A women's body lies freakishly still. Derick's hawk like eyes scour the room. On the marble table sits a white tea cup, saucer, and teapot. Derick scuttles toward the delicate china tea cup and sniffs a long and deep breath..... POSION.

-By Elizabeth

Barry the Hog

It was night-time and it was raining. Barry the hog came out of the bush and attacked the turkeys and sheep. The farmer found the hog and set the dogs on him. The dogs attacked Barry and bit him hard with their sharp white teeth! Barry fought back growling, pushing them off and biting them. The dogs sprinted away, and Barry chased after them.

The farmer ran to his house and fetched a rifle from his safe. He was out to kill Barry. He could not find Barry anywhere so he put his gun away and went to look for his dogs. When the farmer was wandering through the bush, Barry's little piglets came out of nowhere and caught the farmer by the leg of his trousers and dragged him into the dense bush. Barry was very proud of his piglets for saving his life.

The dogs realised the farmer was gone, they found the piglets tracks and followed them in the bush. When they came up the piglets, they were surprised that the piglets turned and attacked them with their sharp yellow teeth.

The dogs decided to run as fast as they could back home to the farm. Barry and his piglets lived a very happy life in the bush.

By Reuben Symons

THE PREDATOR

The rain poured down as Lexi walked home from school on Monday night. Dry, orange and brown leaves crunched as Lexi stepped on them. Lexi began to run. She had to beat Kate and Jake home. But like every Monday night as Lexi turned the corner onto Isabella street, they were waiting for her. They parked their new, flash bikes across the road, blocking Lexi's path. "Leave me alone" Lexi cried desperately. Kate and Jake just laughed. "What are you going to do about it?" Jake shouted over the howling wind. Lexi ran into the forest that bordered the road. She would just have to take the long way around. "At least Kate and Jake will not be able to chase me on their bikes." Lexi said out loud to herself. As Lexi emerged out of the other side of the forest, she realised she was soaking wet.

When she got home, she dropped her wet school bag on the diamond patterned kitchen floor and went into the lounge. "Hi sweetheart" Lexi's dad called as he walked into the lounge carrying a tray with chocolate chip cookies and a teapot full of burning hot tea. "How was your day?" asked Dave, Lexi's dad. "It was great" Lexi said wearily sitting down on the velvet brown couch. "I have some exciting news" said Dave as he sat down. "We are going on a skiing holiday this weekend." "YAY!" shouted Lexi. She was so excited she jumped high into the air and off the couch. "Calm down before you break something" Dave said loudly over the noise. "Where are we going?" asked Lexi. "We are going to Leopards Mountain" Dave began. "Why are we going to Leopards mountain? Have you forgot the story about the massive snow leopard that lives on that mountain?" Lexi demanded angrily "Of course not. I thought we could go there because no other people go there. It would be peaceful and relaxing apart from the snow leopard." replied Dave. After half an hour of arguing Lexi finally gave in. After they had dinner, Lexi went to bed.

Lexi woke up to sound of beeping. It was her stupid alarm clock telling her it was six am. Lexi snuggled back into her soft warm bed. Lexi finally got out of bed at six thirty am and got dressed. When she got downstairs Dave had already made her breakfast. It was a cold frosty morning. She shivered all the way to school. Luckily, Lexi's classroom had a heat pump and it was on full blast, so it was nice and hot in her classroom. The day dragged on and on so slowly. To Lexi it felt like the day would never end. At last the bell rang signaling the end of school. Lexi walked slowly home, too tired to run. The week dragged on and on, slow as a snail. When Lexi went to bed on Friday night, she was too excited to sleep. In the morning at three am Lexi and Dave would be driving to the airport.

The flight to Leopard Mountain was three hours long but to Lexi it felt like the flight was only ten seconds long. When Lexi and Dave got out at Leopard Mountain airport they went straight to where they were staying. They were staying in a little oak apartment, which was fine in the summer but in the winter cold drafts blew into the apartment from under the door. There was a hallway and at the end there was a bedroom on the right and a kitchen. There were no proper beds in the bedroom but there were two old springy mattresses on the floor. In the kitchen there was one small round table and one bare drawer.

"Can I go outside to have a look around." Lexi asked her dad. "Of course, you can" Dave said. "Thank you" said Lexi, rushing down the hallway to grab her coat. It was freezing outside even with a coat on. As Lexi walked on and on she did not see much. Just snow, smaller mountains and more snow. Finally, Lexi came to a small clearing lined with tall brown grass. Snow littered the floor of the clearing. Just then a menacing growl came from in the tall grass behind Lexi.

A huge snow leopard with massive paws stalked out of the tall grass heading straight toward Lexi. The snow leopard's coat gleamed in the dim sunshine like a pearl. Little frosty white snowflakes covered the snow leopard's pattern. The snow leopard's milky grey eyes were trained on her. Lexi turned and raced back towards her house. Instantly the snow leopard gave chase. The snow leopard's coat blended into the environment perfectly. The snow leopard must have given up the chase and went to find easier prey because soon its paw steps faded into the distance.

Lexi did not stop sprinting until she was back at the apartment. The old oak door creaked as Lexi opened it. Dave came out of the kitchen to see who it was. When he saw Lexi standing in the doorway, sweating, he ran over to her. "Are you all right?" Dave asked Lexi. "Forget about me right now and go and shut door" Lexi said. "Come and sit down and tell me what happened out there." said Dave calmly. While Lexi told her dad, what had happened she kept glancing nervously out the window. By the time Lexi had told Dave the whole story he was staring at her amazed. "I think you just met the snow leopard from the story." Dave whispered to Lexi. "Yes. I guessed that when I saw the snow leopard." Lexi replied.

Lexi stayed inside for the rest of the holiday, scared of meeting the snow leopard again. When the holiday ended, Lexi was relieved and could not wait to get home.

-By Sophie

THE LOST BARGE

The tourists stood at the edge of the brick wharf, waiting for the barge to take them to Madagascar. They had just come back from a visit to the Belem tower in Portugal.

The tourists were waiting for hours before they saw something what could it be, they wondered first they thought it was a tabby cat, gray dog or a brown bird? Before they realized it was a piece of the ship and it wasn't in the distance it was right in front of them and it had caught a monstrous oversized wave. It was mind-blowing.

They stood there in amassment the monstrous wave side-swiped them onto the piece of ship and they caught the current back to shore. (some of them had to squish up but at least everyone survived.)

They walked to a hotel and used their phone to contact the next barge and see when it was coming. The very next day at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the tourists sat on the beach and waited and waited and waited for their beloved barge to come, until they saw a huge vessel arrive at the wharf.

The tourists ran to the shadowy colored ship (with their stuff) clambered up the stairs and told the driver to head to Madagascar.

The barge moved slowly and gently away from the wharf. On the way to Madagascar, they saw sharks, dolphins, whales, sting rays and eagle rays. When they got there, they made a shelter out of flax sticks and twigs.

They lived happily ever after.

By Isobel

LILA'S STADIUM

It was a hot sunny day in the year 1998 and a little girl called Lila was walking down the road from school, when she saw a narrow opening in old rusty door, she opened the door to find an old rustic stadium.

Lila stood there in amazement, she had never been in a stadium before, it was a dream come true. As the wind rushed the wind rushed her, she could hear all the screams and the cheering. At that moment Lila knew that she had to save the stadium.

She rushed to the door and tried to open it she pushed, and she pulled over and over again until she figured it was stuck. She turned around and saw another side of the stadium. Lila ran past all the torn seats, and up the stairs to the exit. As Lila reached the exit she turned and saw that the stairs had broken behind her even though she wanted to Lila knew there was nothing she could do.

The very next week it was Lila's birthday and she was turning 11 all her friends came over and she decided that for her birthday they would visit the stadium, they all jumped onto the back row and continued jumping seat over seat until getting to the ground they all looked up at the sky, Lila's friends could see why Lila loved it.

As the party finished and Lila's friends had an idea instead of giving Lila presents, they would rebuild the stadium. So, they gathered their families and met at the stadium they brought some magic and fairy lights to hang outside, the stadium was rebuilt by 6:00pm that night. Lila's stadium was finished, they rung Lila's parents and told them about the stadium and that it was her birthday present.

Lila's mum and dad told Lila to get in the car and put warmer clothes, Lila didn't know what they were going but still listened they parked outside the stadium and blindfolded Lila, they walked Lila in the door before Lila pulled the blindfold off and then everyone shouted "SURPRISE" it was the happiest day of her life, Lila hugged everyone and thanked them so very, very much she even gave them 20% off each ticket and Lila and her family lived the happiest lives.

By Isobel

The Disaster

“Please let me take her” said Abby. Abby is a pretty girl at the age of 22 and is trying to take on a young girl called Sophie. Sophie lives in an orphanage and really wants to go to a normal home. Abby tried to take Sophie, but they wouldn't let her and by they she meant the government. The government said that Sophie was too young, but a 19-year-old girl just took a young boy, so they decided to let it slide.

The next day, Abby decided that they were going to go on a holiday to celebrate Abby's new daughter Sophie. While they sat in the old house, all Sophie could smell was the nauseating damp carpet and it probably didn't help that there was a bucket of food scraps right next to the table. “so what did you want to tell me” asked Sophie. “umm I was wondering if you would like to go on holiday” replied Abby. “yes please” Sophie quickly shot back. “okay where do you want to go” asked Abby. It didn't even take Sophie a second before she said “Hawaii” “i think I can arrange that” Abby remarked. While Abby went and bought tickets on line Sophie went and packed her bags.

It was a cold and windy morning when Sophie and Abby woke up. They had woken up bright and early to catch their flight at 7:30 am. The drive there seemed to take forever. “are we there yet” complained Sophie. “we are two minutes closer than the last time you asked me” replied Abby. After about an hour's drive, they finally arrived at the airport. “finally,” Sophie muttered under her breath. “come on” Abby said.

Walking onto the plane seemed daunting but Sophie knew that if she wanted to go to Hawaii, she had to step on the plane. “WOW” Sophie gasped as she made the final step on the plane. “Hello” said a butler. “let me show you your seats”. As the butler lead them to their seats, Sophie realized that the plane was two story. “okay this is the biggest plane I have ever seen” Sophie said to Abby as they sat down. “yeah. I made sure I bought good tickets” replied Abby.

When the plane started to take off, Sophie freaked out. “am I going to die, because I sure feel like it” Sophie whispered to Abby. “no. Its' just the plane taking off Abby whispered back.

“Attention” said the pilot. “we are about to go through some wind and there might be turbulence”. As the pilot said this Sophie looked out the window and saw a massive floating island. When all of a sudden, the plane swerved, and the plane hit the island. “BOOM”. There was screams and cries every were as Sophies life flashed before her eyes. When she looked over, she saw Abby trapped under suit cases. “Run” screamed Abby. Sophie turned to run but it was too late the roof of the plane came plummeting down right on Sophies stomach. “Crash” another suit case fell on top of Abby's head. Blood spilled everywhere. “BOOM, CRASH, BANG”. The rest of the roof fell on Sophie. All went black in her mind. Abby was dead and so was Sophie.

On the news that night it was announced that there were 11 survivors on the plane and were soon rescued. They also said that they are still trying to find out what cause the plane to crash but for now no one knows.

- By Rylee

Mutation

Tsunami! As the distant cries echo until one tiny little voice yells "Stop!" And what do you know, it all stopped, thanks to tiny little Derrick the orphan. No one knows what happened to his parents. So back to the story. The wave began to speak 'So' He said in a big thundering voice. 'Who dares question me!' 'It is I' said Derrick. 'O' said the wave 'It is just a child. I should just kill you now to get you out of the way' He boomed in a thundering voice. 'Why would you? For I am the one who knows the location of the thing you desire' said Derrick. 'Ok, so what is it then. what is it then?' said the wave. 'The thing you desire is an ancient almighty pearl. Said Derrick. 'Huh how did you know?' asked the wave, shocked.

"My family has protected it for many centuries. When we were blessed with being the protectors of the pearl, we were given eternal life. So, I am achily 285 years old" said Derrick, and he performed some sort of ancient sort of battle cry. As light flashed before their eyes, Derricks family was summoned. 'Why did you summon us, fellow guardian' said the oldest of them. 'Lijegtu' Said Darrick which meant 'For it is the day \the scroll predicted'.

As they began to prepare for battle with some sort of ancient weapons that where magic and out of the sea came electric eels with weapons made of all the trash in the ocean. They also had suits that have bullet proof helmets with water inside and they can kill someone in one ZAP. They also have teeth of acid but that is only the super ones that can go out of water. As the battle began and someone said we need an army after a while all the armies in the world arrived. Ahh they scream over the sound of bullets. "in-coming" yelled the generals. It was true! An army of the living dead! They had brought them back to life with a huge shock to the heart, and they had bomber planes!

But then someone yelled "Hitler". It had happened – Hitler was back! Someone yelled "Nazis! We've beaten them before, and we can do it again". Then little Derrick seemed to be doing something. Someone said, "are you ordering KFC?", but no, he wasn't.

Soon he and his family were yelling "get clear" but the enemy did not which was because then some sort of lava monster from space arrived and crushed them, but then the wave took form and became a water monster, and a battle of the beasts began.

Everybody dashed for their life when the lava monster began to fire out of its mouth and hands. But next thing you know sirens were squalling and everyone was being evacuated.

Then Lava began to rain and that made the lava monster even stronger and BOOM! The lava monster let out the biggest brightest loudest beam of lava. It went for miles and the surface of the sea was covered with obsidian, but the battle did not stop. "Cease fire men and get clear" was the order the order, as the guardians performed some sort of shape shifting and fusion dance thing. Light burst out and everyone was blinded.

After many minutes people began to see again, and before their eyes there was a ferocious giant super beast with a weapon with unimaginable power which held the almighty pearl. But the tsunami summoned two baby tsunamis, one of which had a shotgun loaded with KFC, and the other had a huge M16 loaded with giant bullets.

The KFC guy started shooting KFC into his mouth and the other was shooting like he was a Nazi. "Release the beasts" someone yelled. Next thing you know out of the ground came three platforms.

One held lava beasts, and another had a squad of heavily armed soldiers, and one came far up the mountain with a row of snipers. they waited for the order to fire. It was about to get messy for the water side. Suddenly, out of the sea, came a heavy trooper with an electric RPG which harnessed the power of lightning, which blinded the troops for a second, each time it was fired. ZAP! Boomed through the air as 10000 volts zoomed through the battlefield.

"Open fire!" came the order and the snipers began shooting at the heavy trooper. ZOOM! BOOM! BOOM! BAM!

The guardian beast let out a deafening, blinding blast at the monsters. Everything went quiet. Every enemy was incinerated except a drop of water which went fling and landed in someones drinking water, but that turned out to be a puddle of acid.

With all the enemy gone, the guardians and good beasts were teleported away, and were never seen again.

-By Conor

The Dream

Everything was familiar here in the woods, thought the old owl as he drifted on silent wings. "Morepork, morepork", Hush could hear a faint morepork crying in the distance.

At that same moment Layla, a ten-year-old girl with long black hair and tanned skin, was staring out the window trying to get to sleep. As she lay watching the stars, she decided to count them "one star, two stars, three stars" she counted "and is that a shooting star!" she cried, "I have to make a wish". While she wished, Layla heard a mysterious hoot and she wondered what it was, and who is making it. Suddenly, "whoosh" a sparkling white bird with feathers as white as snow, a stone-gray beak and sharp, sliver claws flew in the window. "Come out of your house and come with me" he softly whispered in a mysterious way.

Filled with curiosity, Layla followed the white bird outside. Suddenly, Layla felt as if she had wings on her feet and she lifted slowly up into the air, flapped her arms and flew away into the starry sky. The owl led her over pointy green spikes, glistening blue pools and under sparkling diamonds, she gazed in awe at the beauty around her. She saw the white owl slowly descending back to the ground and followed nervously, although excitement buzzed through her.

When they finally touched the soft, mossy ground Layla wondered where they were, then the owl spoke. "My name is Hush and we are in a special place, I am about to show you a secret that I guard" "What is it?" Layla asked with curiosity, "you will see" Hush replied. "Wake up, wake up" mum cried, "or you will be late for school". "Oh, it was all a dream, but it seemed so real" murmured Layla.

THE END

-By Avalon

MY SURVIVOR

He once was free but then he was locked up in a small room all alone. The man only feed the ape once a week. He would always pull on the old lock but the man would smack him with strong Bamboo. Then one day the ape found a key he put it in the lock and twisted it open. He ran as fast as he could into the dark forest and looked up and saw the grey sky. But then he remembered that he isn't strong enough to survive by himself. But then he saw his nasty owner aiming a gun at him he knew he had to run so he ran for about one minute then he was trapped. An old brick wall blocked him from getting over he tried to climb it then BANG! He fell to the ground rolling in pain. His owner stared at him with an evil look waiting for him to die. But he kept hanging on for his dear life. He remembered he could fake his death and his owner would walk away hoping for him to rot away soon. So, he closed his eyes and the man walked away. He slept for about three hours woke up and found a little boy staring at him. The little boy ran inside and told his mum. She ran over pulled her phone out of her pocket and called the police she told them that there is an ape on the ground that had been shot. After five minutes the police arrived and took the nasty the man to jail, he was supposed to go there a year ago. But somebody needed to help the Ape they rang the SPCA but they did not answer but the boys mum Dawn had a vet clinic ten minutes away so she put the ape in the car and drove quickly to the vets. When Dawn got there, she got other vets to help get the ape out into the vets. She went into a small room and carefully took the small bullet out. She was worried he wouldn't make it the night. In the morning Dawn opened his cage to see if he could walk, he could. Dawn said that she could take him home and look after him. After a few days her little boy was playing with the ape Dawn decided to call him survivor.

-By Lucy

It Must be Magic

Checking no one was around, Alex held out her hands. She was alone in the forest, and an eerie silence surrounded her. All she could hear was the faint buzz, like a bee settling on a flower, coming from the thing she held so productively in front of her. Her hands were soon filled with a comforting warmth, as a silvery light pulsed from the object. "It must be magic..." she muttered under her breath excitedly "it must be!"

Every day after school, instead of going straight home Alex would go to the forest and play around with then magic until one day. She thought that it was time to tell her friend Sam. But it was getting too late so it would have to wait till tomorrow. "let's hope that Sam actually wants to come" the thought of that for some reason made her nervous, she bit her nails the whole way home "when am I going to tell Mum and Dad this..." Alex swept through the front door and into the house just as the rain started.

"Alex you're just in time for dinner" "we are having lasagne for dinner, your favourite!" Alex's mum Tiana had short dark brown hair and usually wore a yellow singlet. Alex slumped into a chair and slowly ate her food "Alex why are your nails so short?" "you know not to bite your nails when you're nervous" "I know mum its just -" "Alex why are you nervous?" Alex glanced out the window at the rain hitting hard against it, she saw a bunny struggling. It was alone, no food no shelter, no mother. "mum I need to help that bunny she said leaping onto her feet. She dashed out the back door and ran onto the lawn scooping the bunny into her arms. "mum can I please keep her?" Alex said with hope, "alright, but you need to have a shower first, you're both dripping from head to toe!" "Dad and Tyler will be home from rugby soon."

The next day at school, Alex was looking for her friend Sam, she searched the halls up and down but she wasn't there so that could only mean one thing. She was in the library. When Alex got there, to her surprise Sam wasn't there, but then she heard a page turning and there Sam was, curled up in a corner. "Hey Sam, what are you doing after school today?" Sam glanced up in surprise, she was so caught up in her book that she didn't even see Sam was there!" "hi Alex, I was actually hoping to see you today" "Troy has rugby this afternoon and mum said I don't have to watch."

"Well look who we have her, miss Alexandra and Samantha" a woman growled sternly, the girls turned around to see their principle Mrs Matushka who glared at them with furry. "The bell rung half an hour ago and you have both been marked absent." "sorry Mrs Matushka, we'll go to class now" "oh no you don't, I think you two can spend a few hours in my class today." "A few hours!?" the girls cried with horror "Sam, this suck" Alex mumbled "I know Alex, I know" the two girls slouched off behind Mrs Matushka towards the principal's office

"Hurry up Sam let's go!" Alex exclaimed excitedly as the bell rang "let's get out of this place" Sam followed behind Alex and they got on their bikes "where are we going Alex?" Sam questioned "just wait and see" Alex replied. They rode their bikes down to the forest and stopped in a big clearing right in the middle. "Are you ready Sam?" "As ready as I'll ever be" Alex did the magic and Sam started to laugh "Sam it's not funny!" "I could be possessed!"

"Alex you aren't possessed!" Sam couldn't contain her laugh "Sam I could die!" "you won't die you egg" Sam had tears in her eyes she was laughing so hard "Alex how about this, I can help you try and figure out what it is" Sam said as she wiped away the tears " yes that would be helpful Sam, you promise?" "yeah, yeah, I'm not doing that babyish pinkie promise rubbish though, why do you look disappointed?! I'm the one that got their hopes up!"

By Savahna

The Big Wave!

Percy was so excited to go back home from a famous landmark in Japan (it's famous for big waves).

He glanced over at the shiny blue waves crashing into the wharf and was so excited to come home to see his pet dog, Ruff. Then 10 minutes later, Percy saw a shiny little wave forming bigger and bigger till it was rushing towards him. So he ran to the first thing he saw - THE RUBBISH BIN!

Percy jumped into the empty bin that smelt like rotten banana skins. Oh well better than nothing. Suddenly, he was getting tossed around in a stinky bin. A little mouse popped out from behind him, his name was Zach.

He also had a friend that ran to the recycling bin that was next to him but now she's elsewhere, her name is Isobel.

HALF AN HOUR LATER...

Percy was upside down in the bin. He rocked around in the bin till it was sideways then he opened the lid and crawled out. The sight was terrible, there was nothing left but puddles, rocks, Percy, the bin and the little mouse called Zach. Then a little fuzzy thing was running towards Percy, guess who it was...

It was Isobel! He ran over to her he was so happy to see her ALIVE. Zach ran with Percy to see Isobel.

Well that's all Percy can tell for now.

By Heidee

REPOSESS

'NOOO' Someone bawled, as their friend was brutally slaughtered by a dark knight. It was night, they had only come out to locate the dark knights camp. The rebellion scout took a fast-looking horse and galloped away, but that was not the last he had seen of the dark knight. Almost as soon as it started a high-speed chase began galloping into the horizon, then the rebel got an m16, and started shooting at the dark knight. He was dead, but it wasn't long before a team of dark knights came. A squad of magic chickens came and started saying "I am KFC! Eat me!". The rebel didn't, but the horse did and fell asleep! Luckily by the time the dark knights had caught up it was early morning. That was the time the rebels had planned to do a full-scale attack, which was about to start.

As the battle horns were blown, the air craft started to fly, the ancient robots began to move, and the special squads of zombies and vampires were marching out, and the battle ships drifted down the river. The tricky scout led the Dark Knights smack into the middle of the rebel forces, and all hell broke out. The war had begun on a majestic planet. Paratrooper squads of zombies and vampires deployed from the battle crafts, with SMGs that fired zombie virus, converting every Dark Knight they shot into another zombie. The dark knights started fires in the forest to protect their base.

And the robots shoot lasers out of their eyes. "Incoming" yelled the dark knights because lava monsters came out of nowhere with the giant robots and Derrick and the Guardian Monster. (if you don't know what this is, he was featured in my story "Mutation".) The ground troops fought through to the heavily fortified cave where the Dark Nights Leader was, while the giant beasts battled the army. It was truly a battle of the ages. Especially with Zombies and vampires.

As they advanced it got harder and harder. They lost LOOOOOOTS of troops. By the time they had killed every, last guard they had reached the boss and he didn't earn the name "The Slaughterer" for nothing you know. BOOM! Knocking everyone off their feet and the army of Dark Knights outside, killing them all.

"Back to the big battle brains!" cried the zombies. "I will suck your blood" cried the vampires. THUD! THUD! THUD! The floor shook as the beasts and robots approached.

The enemy leader thought "I need to flee, but how?" Then he saw an ancient vine. It was that, or get taken prisoner, but the vine was ancient and could shatter at any second. the robots had arrived in the time he spent thinking. He had to act now. He grabbed the vine and sang:

*"I believe I can fly,
So I got shot by the FBI
Then I went to the hospital,
And asked for a popsicle,
Then I went home and hit my mum on the head with a ?? Frying pan,
Then she hit me with a mini-van..."*

... And then the vine snapped. He fell and died. The guardians were zapped away, and the guardian robots got their planet back. And that was that.

The End

By Conor

